LEVELED GUN AT CITY MARSHAL

Alec Palmer was Quickly
Knocked Down when he Pointed Cocked Pistol

WOMEN RUN AND SCREAM

Palmer was Drinking and had Been Raising a Disturbance in His Home

Like a grim spectre pointing a defying finger signifying death, Alec Palmer appeared last night at the door in his home, attired in his night clothes, with a gun in his hand which he leveled at the head of City Marshal Price, and in another instant would have fired the weapon but the officer sprang at him like a tiger and struck him a blow on the head which floored the would-be gun user.

Tuesday was pension day and Palmer, being an old soldier received his money from the government.

Since then he has been imbibing freely in the amber fluid and last night upon reaching his home on the corner of First and Pearl streets, he at once began to act in an obnoxious manner toward the members of the household. The Palmers live in the second story of the house and after he had undressed to retire for the night, he began to pace up and down the room, shouting and cursing and greatly annoying both families domiciled there.

One of the women slipped out of the house and telephoned for Price. When he arrived upon the scene his presence seemed to pacify Palmer, and the latter agreed to go to bed when he was told it was the only alternative next to going to jail. Mr. Price went down stairs and told the family he would remain a few minutes to see if the fellow kept his word and remained in bed. While they were all seated about the room chatting and laughing, one of the women noted that she heard the trunk lid close in the upstairs room where Palmer was supposed to be in bed. In another minute the door leading to the room where all were seated opened and Palmer appeared with a gun in his hand. It was cocked and as he raised it to fire Price was upon him in an instant and prevented him from doing so by luckily knocking him down with one blow of his fist. The women screamed and ran from the house. As Palmer was reeling across the room, the officer followed and pouncing upon him wrenched the gun from his hand. He found it cocked, loaded and ready for action.

The man was placed under arrest and taken to jail in a bus. He did not show fight after he was disarmed and begged of the officer not to beat him. That he did not fire the pistol before anyone saw him is quite fortunate for he is known to be a man of that sort when he is in his cups. When sober he is a good, peaceable, law abiding citizen and would not harm anyone.

MANY BROUGHT BEFORE GRAND JURY

Opinion is Prevalent That they are Investigating "Green
Goods, Case

The grand jury is still in session and while the nature of their investigation cannot be given out, it is presumed that they are going into the Glenwood green goods swindle and the case of Link Gruell, who was arrested on the complaint of fifteen-year-old Myrtle Thorne, on a serious charge.

It will be remembered that the girl declared afterwards that she swore to a lie in making the affidavit, and was forced to do so by her father.

PATROTIC SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Pastor will Deliver an Address on "Life and Time of Washington"

Patriotic exercises will be observed at the Main Street Christian church on Sunday evening, February 23d at which time the pastor, Rev. R. W. Abberley, will deliver an address on "The Life and Times of Washington."

Special invitations will be extended to the members of the G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps and Patriotic Order Sons of America of this city to attend these services.

OIL FIELD AT BUENA VISTA

Will be Re-opened by a New Company Organized at Indianapolis

LAND HAS BEEN LEASED

It Will be a Hard Matter to Interest Buena Citizens in New Enterprise

Despite the fact that the famous oil field of Buena Vista was alleged to have been "salted," by one who claims he was present and saw the crude oil poured in at the still hours of midnight, it seems there are those who still have faith in Buena.

There is a case now pending in the Rush circuit court, in which a Pittsburgh man has given his deposition to the effect that O'Connell, the man who had the Buena well drilled, hired him to haul the crude oil from Muncie to Buena with which to "salt" the well.

From a message received from Buena we now learn that land is being leased by Indianapolis people for drilling into the Buena hills for oil and gas. The report is not a fake, the books at the county recorder's office at Brookville, show a record of lease privileges, properly signed and recorded.

It will be hard matter for the Indianapolis company to sell stock to residents of Buena, who were so completely drawn into O'Connell's scheme.

They who were once so enthusiastic over the oil prospects, now stand aloof and say, "not a dollar of mine goes into the hands of the new company."

However there are some who yet believe that oil and gas apounds in the hills surrounding the little village and those will form a nucleus for an organization.

Some are of the opinion that the company is just another O'Connell organization and it will be almost dangerous to solicit some of the citizens to purchase stock in the new enterprise.

It is understood that a well will be commenced in the near future and many are wondering what the outcome will be.

MEEK MAY BE ABLE TO BUY A CHAIN

Glenwood Butcher Purchases the Old Kohlheiser Meat Market
in Connersville

Perry Meek, the Glenwood meat dealer, has purchased the Kohlheiser market and equipment in Connersville and will take possession and open the business in about thirty days. If he is successful in his law suit against Stamper White, filed in the Rush circuit court this week, he may open a chain of meat markets.

WOLFE FELL ON CHURCH FLOOR

Intoxicated Epileptic Startled
Congregation by Falling
Into a Fit

GOES TO JAIL IN A BUS

Character Who Has Caused the Police no End of Trouble,
Again in the Toils

Last night while the Salvation Army was conducting services in the Pearl Street church, a man arose in his seat, and staggering down the aisle attracted the attention of those present. When near the door he gave a sharp cry and fell headlong on the floor. Several rushed to his side while the officer in charge of the meeting demonstrated all to remain in their seats and not become excited as there was no occasion to be frightened.

The fellow rolled and tossed upon the floor, and writhed under the apparent pain of great agonies.

It was found that the fellow was Charles Wolfe, a painter, who is an epileptic and subject to fits. In the past few years he has drank heavily and this, it is believed, is responsible in a large measure for his many attacks. By his drinking he has become a great source of annoyance to the police of Rushville, Greensburg and Connersville, the three cities where he holds forth.

Recently he tried to commit suicide on two occasions in Greensburg, and only the prompt action of physicians saved his life. At that time he was despondent, so he claimed, over domestic affairs.

City Marshal Price was called last night and loaded the fellow into a bus and took him to jail. Wolfe had been drinking again.

LAUREL TRUSTEE HAS LEFT COUNTRY

Man Whose Books were Found in a Muddled Condition is Gone

In speaking of the Laurel trustee, whose books were found in a muddled condition recently, the Brookville American has the following:

"The Laurel township matter was thought to be practically settled at one time but now develops new and unexpected difficulties. Ensminger is gone and some of the bondsmen are said to favor a prosecution. The bondsmen of the first and second terms cannot agree as to liability of each term. In the meantime it is said that bills are coming in at Laurel that are represented to have been paid. A car load of coal is unpaid for, which, it is reported did not go to schools, at least but a part of it, but was ordered by Ensminger as trustee. It is said that some of the supervisors did not get their money."

BY THE WAYSIDE

Listen Rushville housekeepers! Fly paper is on a rampage. It will cost a cent more than it has in all previous summers. Wholesalers have raised the price twenty cents a box, and this will add a cent a sheet to the retail price. Wholesalers say manufacturers did it. Manufacturers say they had to, as the price of mullin paper costs more and rosin is five per cent higher than it was year ago. Shoo fly.

The United States Government and that of Canada are resurveying the boundary lines between the latter country and ours as far east as Vermont. Many of the marks had disappeared.

FAILED TO FIND THE GIRL'S BODY

Investigation was Made Yesterday in an Effort to Clear up Mystery

MOTHER FOUND IN TEARS

The McFeeleys Still Hold out for Murder Theory—The Cochrels
Scout it.

The disappearance of Nellie McFeeley still remains a mystery, but an investigation has been instituted which promises to bear fruit. City Marshal Price, accompanied by a representative of this paper made an investigation of the affair yesterday. However, little light was thrown on the case on account of the fact that the two branches of the two families interested, the McFeeleys and the Cochrels hold decidedly different views on the matter.

At the McFeeley home, the mother of the girl, who is alleged to have been murdered was found. She is a slender, little woman with a placid face in which the lines caused by trouble and years of labor are deep and many, and she stood wringing her hands, twisted by rheumatism, as she answered a few questions regarding her daughter. With tears in her eyes, sobbing and choking she declared that she believed she had been killed by young Cochrel. When asked what grounds she had for this conclusion, she told of how Cochrel had learned that Nellie made an engagement to meet another fellow, who was welcomed at the McFeeley home, and he became enraged and declared he would kill the fellow on sight. The girl learned of this threat and refused to keep the date. It was then that Cochrel insisted that she keep it, for he wanted cause to put the fellow out of the way, so McFeeley said. Two days after this the couple disappeared, and the word was given out that they had gone to Kentucky. No one has seen them since.

At the home of Frank Gilson in South Pearl street, the father, sister and brother of Lon Cochrel, the accused man, were found. They were very much perturbed that such a report would be circulated, and while none of them knew where the couple were, still they scouted that idea that the girl was murdered. They claimed that John Brown, a resident of South Pearl street, saw Cochrel a week ago at Columbus. The family is now trying to locate him that he can return here and vindicate himself.

At the deserted Helm house where the remains of the girl were supposed to be hidden, a partial investigation was made. The house was searched from top to bottom by the officer, reporter and John Cochrel, a brother of Lon Cochrel. Cochrel secured a key to the outhouse door which his father has been carrying, but it was impossible to make a thorough investigation there.

The vacant house is said to be haunted. Cochrel declared that the door leading from the front room down stairs would not remain closed and ever and anon would swing open. This, he explained, was probably due to the fact that the wind sweeps in from an opening near the head of the stairs. The Cochrel family formerly occupied the house.

Every member of the Cochrel family declare that the whole affair was started by John McFeeley, who was seeking notoriety. They say the couple will turn up in due time, happily married, as two of them claim they saw the marriage license.

Mrs. D. H. Dean, who has been suffering with grip at her home in North Harrison street, is convalescing.

William D. Lewis will have a public sale at his home north of Orange, on next Thursday.

At least 90 per cent. of all cases of neuralgic headache are attributed by Dr. Toms, an American oculist, to defects of the eyes.

FIRE BROKE OUT AT THE MOSCOW SCHOOL HOUSE

Terror Reigned for Short Time
Among Frightened Pupils—
Small Damage

There was quite a deal of excitement at the Moscow school Thursday afternoon when one of the pupils noticed smoke coming from the basement.

Terror reigned for a few minutes and the children climbed over seats, in order to escape. But the fire was soon extinguished before much damage was done.

The fire originated in the basement and was caused by an overheated furnace.

IN A MAZE OF BEWILDERMENT

Indiana Democracy is up in the Air on the Temperance Question

TO MEET EARLY THIS YEAR

That they Might Shake the Tree of Public Approval First—
Trick Will Re-act

A tempest in the tea pot is surely brewing in Indiana Democracy. How now with Tom Taggart, saloon keeper and hotel man, and his man Friday, State Chairman Stokes Jackson of Greenfield, not to speak of Bernard Korbly of Indianapolis, and Crawford Fairbanks, the owner of the Terre Haute brewery, leaders of the followers of Jefferson in this State, having to deal with an anti-temperance question which is being blowed up in a stiff gale among some of the younger members of the party who would make a spectacular stand for such a measure and other questions of reform and morality.

The Democrat State convention will be held earlier this year than any time in its history that they can step in first and have an anti-saloon plank in their platform before the Republicans convene. They are desperate. But it is the younger demagogues who are rushing in where Democratic angels have always feared to tread heretofore.

The "old boys" who still hold the reins, are either backed or they are a part of the liquor interests of the State, bag and baggage. With this situation before us, we are assured of many complicated situations, which would make excellent material for a light French farce.

If both parties have an anti-saloon plank in their platforms—which is now likely—the State will go overwhelmingly Republican, greater than ever before. Sincere and conscientious Democrats will vote the Republican ticket then for they would not like to trust such a big question of morality in the very hands of the enemies to such a cause; and on the other hand many Democrats, who are interested or sympathize with the liquor interests, will vote the Republican ticket in a spirit of revenge and spite. At best its to be a stormy and emotional campaign for the Democrats.

FORMER RUSH COUNTY MAN INJURED BY FALL ON THE ICE

The Knightstown Banner has the following: O. F. Whitton, a Rush county farmer who moved last fall from Center township to A. E. Carroll's farm, northwest of town, fell upon the ice Wednesday about 11 o'clock. The fall produced concussion of the brain, and he remained unconscious for several hours. Dr. R. A. Smith attended him and he is now getting along nicely.

FLIRTING GIRLS ARE DANGEROUS

If They are not of the True
Womanly Type—Ethics to Observe

HOW AND WHEN TO FLIRT

It is Essential, Meet and Proper for a Girl to Make Herself
Attractive to Opposite Sex

A woman who does not care to make herself attractive to the men is either a dowdy and homely as a "hedge fence," or else one that no man on earth would take a second look at. Why, women from "Mother Eve" down were made to be attractive to the other sex. A man is the blindest thing in existence until some woman opens his eyes and makes him believe she is the smartest and loveliest object in creation.

"No woman can do that and not be a flirt." Well, there are flirts and then there are other flirts. The kind you mean is the most dangerous and dispicable of her sex. She has no respect for either God nor man nor "fear of the devil." She is shallow minded, vain, unwomanly and risqué. All is fish that comes to her net, be they married or single. She ruins homes, destroys faith in her sex, appeal solely to the baser passions, and puts her-self morally and mentally on a level with those "other women."

On the other hand, a woman has the right in any way consistent with her womanly purity and truth to use every art of dress and manner to make herself desirable to the man-not-mentioned, in whose eyes she desires to appear admirable. She may woo him by the arts of dress, by the subtle glance that expresses admiration, by the touch of her hand that appeals to his strength, by the deference that yields to his "superior" wisdom, in short by any of the thousand weapons given her by heaven for this very purpose, to show him that she is the one thing on earth to be desired "above rubies." In fact, if this be flirting it is almost a necessary process in attracting the other sex.

A man is without discrimination, where there is a woman concerned, and she is forced to show "the one particular man" that she is like no other of her sex. To keep him thinking thus she must show to him that she is also desirable in other man's eyes. If she must keep "him fettered for life" she must at no time relax her efforts, so long as her husband retains even one of his "five senses."

The difference between the two "methods," the two "flirts," is that one is degrading and the other is up lifting. All men can tell which; even the so-called "brainless dude" admires and respects the womanly woman, while every thought of his degrades the other.

INTERESTING DEBATE IN HIGH SCHOOL SENATE

The Senate at the high school had an interesting debate on "Parcels Post" this afternoon, which resulted in a victory for the affirmative.

The affirmative was defended by John Moffett, Elgar Higgs and Bruce Oline and the negative was represented by Amos Baxter, Warder Hackleman and Samuel Finney.

THE WEATHER

Partly cloudy, with probably light snow flurries in extreme north portion tonight.

There is one American book which should be counted among the best sellers. Over 3,000,000 copies have been sold. It is "The Horse Book," issued by the Government.

A LIFE SENTENCE

Francis M. Duncan Convicted at Greenfield of Killing La Follette.

MEANS LIFE IN PRISON

Plea of Self Defense Was Not Heeded by the Twelve Men Who Sat in the Case.

An Incident of the Trial Was the Disappearance of Widow of Murdered Man.

Greenfield, Ind., Feb. 8.—The jury in the case of Francis M. Duncan, charged with the murder of James La Follette, returned a verdict finding Duncan guilty of murder in the second degree. Duncan will be sentenced to Michigan City prison for life.

A motion will be made by the attorneys for the defense for a new trial. Pending the filing of this motion Duncan will be kept in jail here.

The crime for which Duncan will spend his life in prison was committed Sunday night, Nov. 17, in an alley in the rear of the LaFollette home. Duncan's plea was that he shot La Follette in self-defense.

An incident of the trial was the disappearance of Mrs. Nan LaFollette-Fisher, who was the wife of the man killed but who married a Shelby county man later. The woman was desired as a witness for the state, but could not be found when her name was called.

GAVE THE ALARM

Women's Screams Warn Cracksmen 'Tis Time to Fade Away.

Milton, Ind., Feb. 7.—At 2 o'clock in the morning burglars blew off the outer door of the safe in the Farmers' bank here. The explosion waked Mrs. Marie Beeson and she opened a window and aroused her next-door neighbor, Mrs. David Nugent. The two women screamed, but failed to arouse any men.

Mrs. Nugent called the night telephone operator and told her to arouse A. J. Hart, president of the bank. Armed with a shotgun, he hurried to the bank, but the burglars had escaped in a buggy. They were frightened away before they could open the burglar-proof box. The explosion wrecked the interior of the bank. Marshal Drischel has been trying thus far without success to locate the robbers.

Work of Tramp and His Pipe.

Petersburg, Ind., Feb. 7.—The big dairy barn on the farm of James Wade, east of this city, burned and twelve cows and twenty-five sheep were cremated, and $500 worth of farm implements and machinery were destroyed. Thirteen cows broke their ropes and escaped from the building, and twenty-five head of sheep also escaped. The city fire company could not render assistance. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought a tramp climbed into the haymow and began smoking. The loss on barn and contents is $3,500, with no insurance.

Will Dismiss Bank Cases.

Walash, Ind., Feb. 7.—Prosecutor Carpenter has announced that the cases against Dayton C. Harter, cashier of the North Manchester bank, who was indicted for alleged embezzlement in accepting deposits when the bank was known to be insolvent, would be dismissed. The supreme court decided that insolvency should be charged in the indictment, and this was not done. Daniel Krisher, president of the bank, who was also indicted, died before trial. The statute of limitation prevents further prosecution, and Harter goes free.

People Will Fight Advanced Rates.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 7.—The telephone rate fight reached a climax in a mass meeting, when it was agreed to organize a citizens' company to fight the present company. It is proposed to put in a new system at once. The old company raised the rates in January from $1.25 to $1.50 per month. The subscribers objected, and out of 1,350 phones, over 800 have been ordered disconnected. All business phones practically have been taken out, and only the physicians' phones remain.

Both Engines Demolished.

Noblesville, Ind., Feb. 7.—Division Superintendent Dennison of the Lake Erie & Western road is investigating the wreck which occurred here Wednesday when a passenger train ran into an open switch and crashed into a freight engine. Both engines were practically demolished. The company's loss is estimated at $15,000. Engineer John Fitzmaurice of Peru, Fireman John Leedy of Peru, Engineer W. Kinsman of Tipton, and E. D. Gamble, mail clerk, of Macy, were injured.

Fatal Accident to Huntsman.

Bloomfield, Ind., Feb. 7.—Frederick Lowder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lowder of Fairplay township, of which Mr. Lowder is trustee, while hunting with his brother Carl, shot and killed himself while passing through a wire fence, the trigger of the gun striking a wire.

FRANCO AN EXILE

Former Portuguese Premier Seeks Safety in Neighboring Capital.

Madrid, Feb. 7.—Senhor Franco, the former premier of Portugal, has arrived here from Lisbon. He was accompanied by his wife and son and one of his intimate friends, Senhor Nozas. He is doing all possible to preserve the strictest incognito. So far as is known he has received no one at the hotel where he is stopping with the exception of the Portuguese minister to Spain and the civil governor of Madrid.

Few persons saw Franco when he arrived and scarcely anyone recognized him, for the moment the train stopped he hurriedly stepped down, with overcoat collar turned up and hat down over his head, seeking to escape possible identification. Word had privately reached the railroad authorities from the frontier station of Alcantara that Franco was a passenger on board the express going to Madrid, and they immediately arranged an effective though unobtrusive police detail at the station.

On the arrival of the train Senhor Franco quickly descended the steps from the car and held out his hand to aid his wife. As he turned it was seen that Franco's face was drawn and care-worn, his air was of one depressed and utterly wearied. He peered up and down the platform distrustfully, almost fearfully. The police drew up on either side of the party, who hastily entered carriages and drove rapidly away. They went directly to the Hotel De La Paix, where the former premier secluded himself in his private apartment.

ABOUT TIME

Congressmen Once More Consent to Regard Public Business.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Political speech-making has come to an end in the house of representatives, actual consideration of the Indian appropriation bill having been resumed. A bitter fight was waged on the proposition to abolish non-reservation schools, and the subject was discussed at length. The question was raised by the offering of an amendment by Delegate Smith of Arizona to restrict the appropriation for collecting and transporting Indian children at school to the state in which they live.

Previous to the debate on the Indian appropriation bill, Mr. Clayton of Alabama spoke on the president's special message and held up the Republicans as being divided into two factions—"the reactionaries and the White House cuckoos." The message, he charged, was an indictment against the Republican party for its dereliction and incompetency.

A financial speech by Senator Culberson of Texas, and the passage of a bill providing for a government exhibition at the Alaska-Yukon Pacific exposition were the chief features of interest in the proceedings of the senate.

Editors Sit at Feast.

Indianapolis, Feb. 7.—The Indiana Democratic Editorial association, in two-days' midwinter session here, last night enjoyed its annual banquet at the Grand hotel. The gathering about the festive board was one of the largest and most enthusiastic of a long series, and every speech, of which there were a number, breathed strong hope of the outcome of the coming political contest. A. B. Crampton of Delphi presided as toastmaster, and among those who responded to toasts were Henry A. Barnhart, Rochester; Royal C. Purcell, Vincennes; Frank D. Halmbaugh, Muncie; W. C. Ball, Terre Haute; Mrs. Juliet Strauss, Rockville; Thomas Taggart, and Judge Cox of Peru. The editors are holding their annual business meeting today.

Murderous Highwaymen.

Woburn, Mass., Feb. 7.—Three highwaymen, heavily armed, appeared in Woburn and vicinity last night and after holding up two men at the points of revolvers, shot two police officers, one possibly fatally; shot and severely injured the driver of a police wagon, slightly injured a boy and fired at a barber who attempted to capture one of them, and then made good their escape.

They Want Morse to Come Back.

New York, Feb. 7.—At the request of United States District Attorney Stimson, Albert B. Boardman, counsel for Charles W. Morse, has cabled his client at Liverpool asking that Morse return to this city. Mr. Boardman believes that the banker will take passage on the first steamer sailing west after the arrival at Queenstown or Liverpool of the Cunard line steamship Campania, upon which his attorney says Morse sailed from here last Saturday.

Whitewater at Dangerous Stage.

Brownsville, Ind., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Ebenezer Burch and two daughters, while attempting to ford Whitewater river at this place, narrowly escaped drowning. The side-bar of the buggy broke, throwing them into the water. They were rescued by John Heir, who happened to witness the accident. The Whitewater continues to rise, and all traffic from the west is cut off, and the rural mail routes have suspended delivery of mail.

A receiver has been appointed to take charge of the affairs of Joseph Brown & Co., wholesale jewelers of Chicago. The liabilities are said to be $100,000.

That "holy war" in Morocco will probably be waged in the usual unholy fashion.

DELVE TO BOTTOM

Investigation of Government Printshop Scandal to Be Thorough.

"AUDIT SYSTEM" EJECTED

The Costly Adjunct That Got Stillings In the "In Bad" Club Given Six Days to "Git."

The President Has Called For a Specific Report on Some Remarkable Extravagances.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Concurring in the recommendation of Acting Public Printer Rossiter, the president has cancelled the contract of the government with the Audit System and ordered it ejected from the government's printing office at the end of six days. The Audit System is the corporate name of the cost-ascertaining method which was installed more than a year ago by Public Printer Stillings. Under its operation the government has paid about $120,000 for the privilege of calculating the cost of government printing and binding. Representative Landis of Indiana, chairman of the joint committee which is investigating the government printing office, says that the Audit System as it has been installed and operated in Washington "is a gold brick thinly plated with the genuine stuff. We have paid for this brick," said Mr. Landis, "and before we throw it out, we are going to extract and retain the modicum of value it is gilded with. I mean that you can't run the government printing office with all its departments and its 4,500 employees, without using some method of cost ascertainment. So if there are any good features in the Audit System we are going to keep them, for we have paid for them many times over."

Mr. Landis is authority for the statement that the joint investigating committee proposes to take the lid entirely off and delve to the bottom of the many charges, some of them definite and distinct, others of a public rumor character, which eventuated in the suspension by the president of Public Printer Stillings and his succession by W. S. Rossiter of the census bureau.

Mr. Rossiter has been designed by the president to make an impartial survey of conditions there and to recommend methods for reducing the office to a business basis. This task, an extremely arduous and complex one, he at once plunged into and his judgment is that in about three weeks he will be able to submit an intelligent report to the White House.

Among the charges which the joint investigating committee will inquire into pursuant to the suspension of Public Printer Stillings is that his administration has compassed remarkable extravagances. Chairman Landis, who visited the government printing office to call on Mr. Rossiter, found himself ushered into surroundings which a multimillionaire might fancy. In the public printer's office are massive furniture, costly pictures, appointments of elegance, little in keeping with a printing and binding plant. The committee with the help of Mr. Rossiter, will endeavor to find out why, roughly speaking, it has cost the government $50 to turn out a job which a commercial house would do for $15.

The committee may inquire into such reports as these: That 45 cents a pound has been paid for quantities of inks worth less than 20 cents a pound; that the store-rooms of the government printing office contain at the present time more paper stock than other administrations used up in half a dozen years; that so great was the pomp with which Public Printer Stillings surrounded himself that persons having business with him were frequently required to make appointments a day ahead, and never could gain his presence without running the fire of uniformed lackeys and threading a maze of scarlet tape.

Congress Growing Economical.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Though the house committee on naval affairs has taken no vote on the subject, there is excellent authority for predicting that it will recommend the appropriation of money for the building of two instead of the four battleships urged by President Roosevelt and Secretary Metcalf. The certainty of a heavy deficit and the prospect of decreased revenues during the next fiscal year have been held up as a warning by Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee, and a general tendency on the part of the Republicans in the house to hold down expenditures is evident.

Identity Revealed.

Baltimore, Feb. 7.—A message from the Italian minister of foreign affairs has been received by Consul Shapiro stating that Ernest Douglas, the mysterious foreigner who was found murdered here on Jan. 16, was in reality the Count Enrico Douglas Scotti, a member of an Italian noble family.

Geography in City Schools

BY PROF. J. H. SCHOLL

GRADE 4B.

Develop ideas of a mile, five miles, a hundred miles and of an hour, day, week, month, year, as units of thought. Lead pupils to make real to themselves long distances by translating them into units of time in connection with various modes of travel. Connect this with number. Have pupils locate places mentioned in their reading and other lessons.

Tarr and McMurry's Introductory Geography, pages 1-101.

"The Soil" is a topic that may well receive two or three weeks time according to the interest displayed. Examine several kinds of soil, and visit places where different kinds of soil may be seen, for example, the digging of a sewer or a cellar.

"Hills and Mountains" should receive attention for two weeks. Note the work of rains. Show pictures of hills and mountains.

"Valleys and Rivers" and "Ponds and Lakes" will form interesting work for three or four weeks. Give some attention to local rainfall, the use of sewers, and drainage in general.

"The Air," pages 71-80, should receive careful attention as it is the foundation of the work on climate for succeeding grades. Perform the experiments indicated and supplement the work by others.

"Industry and Commerce" should be taken up in connection with the study of Rushville.

Rushville.—Rushville is a city. It has a charter and is governed by a mayor and a city council. Learn the names and duties of the city officers. Compare the population of Rushville with neighboring cities and with Indianapolis. Review the work of the third year. Distance and direction to other cities. Railroads and interurbans.

Name and locate the industries of the city.

GRADE 4A.

Tarr and McMurry's Introductory Geography, pages 102-137.

Draw a map of Rush county and develop the idea of a county. Teach the location of the most important places of the county. The work of this grade is very important as the imperfect teaching of the form, size, and motions of the earth together with the zones will destroy the best result of future work besides giving indistinct and incorrect impressions of the earth as a whole. Make use of the globe and maps in this term's work.

GRADE 5.

This grade studies North America as a whole and then makes a detailed study of the United States and the countries bordering. Do not attempt to teach everything in the text, but seek to give the essentials to the conception of most important facts. In this and succeeding grades the natural interdependence of geography and other subjects (but more particularly history) should be constantly be borne in mind by the teacher. Pupils should be trained to consult the globe, the atlas, the wall maps, and other aids such as the key to pronunciation, index and table of contents. Frequent exercise in map drawing should be given.

GRADE 5A.

Tarr and McMurry's Introductory Geography, pages 199-254.

This grade makes a study of South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and the Island of the Sea. Strive to give distinct idea of the location, surface, rivers, climate, history and people, products, and cities, by means of an outline study of each of the continents. Supplement this by readings from Carpenter's Geographical Readers and other similar books.

Books that should be read by teachers:

Grade 3—McMurry's Excursions and Lessons in Home Geography.

Grade 4—McMurry's Manual of Geography.

Grade 5—McMurry's Type Studies from the Geography of the United States; Carpenter's Geographical Readers.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson VI.—First Quarter, For
Feb. 9, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John iv, 1-42.
Memory Verses, 23, 24—Golden Text,
John vii, 37—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association.]

Let us remember in every lesson in this gospel just why the Spirit wrote it (chapter xx, 31) and note the desired end in verse 42 of our lesson. "Now we believe and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world." The witnesses have only to bear faithful testimony to Him, and the Spirit by whom we witness will care for His own word and make it to accomplish the purpose of God. We must know Him as the Bridegroom, the one to whom the Father hath given all things and the Spirit without measure, the Messiah of Israel, who will surely fulfill all that is written of Him and in due time bring the kingdom (iii, 26-36). All who truly receive Him have life, but on all others the wrath of God abideth.

In the daily life of every fully surrendered child of God there is a "must needs go" for every step and a "need be" for every event (verse 4; 1 Pet. i, 6), that the plan of God may be wrought out and the individual fitted for the service of the kingdom.

Sychar and Shechem and Jacob's well take us back to Gen. xli, 6; xxxiii, 18-20; Josh. xxiv, 32, and set us thinking of many things in the purpose of God, some fulfilled in the past and some yet to be. We have an illustrative fulfillment in our lesson of those words of Jacob in Gen. xli, 22, "Joseph is a fruitful bough by a well whose branches run over the wall."

As Jesus sits by Jacob's well He is very near to the place where Joseph's body lay buried, and he reached over the Samaritan wall that day to find this woman and through her many others. There is a larger fulfillment to be seen in the future, and also of that other saying of Jacob's, "From thence is the Shepherd, the Stone of Israel."

According to John's way of reckoning time, the hour when Jesus sat thus on the well would be our 6 in the morning, the same as in chapter xix, 14, for it was not unusual for Him to rise a great while before day. His true humanity is seen in His being weary and thirsty and hungry in His longing for fellowship of those whom He had chosen and in many other ways. He was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. While the disciples went to the city to buy meat He was left alone, and then cometh this woman, never dreaming that this was to be to her the day of all days in her history, the day when she would meet her Creator and Redeemer and receive Him as her own, but He who notes a sparrow's fall had foreseen it all. In last week's lesson we saw His divine wisdom in dealing with a moral, upright, religious man, and now we see the same wisdom in dealing with this sinful woman, for this man receiveth sinners.

He began by asking of her a favor, and each of His seven sayings has in it a promise like the fullness of God.

RUSHVILLE CHURCHES SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

For "in Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily" (Col. ii, 9), and some of that fullness is manifest in every word of His. Water is a topic which leads us from the river in Eden to the river of Rev. xxi, and even in the restoration story of Gen. i, we find on the second day waters above and waters below, as we do also in Jer. ii, 13. But here we have most fully the water of earth and the heavenly living water, which when received becomes in the true believer a well of water filling him and refreshing others. The remarks of the woman in reply to the Saviour's sayings are about as foolish as were the words of Nicodemus, for she, too, is only a natural person, seeing things with natural eyes. After He interested her in this water, of which she had never before heard, He then began to show her herself, or, as S. D. Gordon says in his "Sychar Revival," to show her the underside of the plank where were all manner of slimy, creeping things. She began to be uneasy under such searching and would fain turn the conversation, but He held her until He said to her, "I am the Messiah" (verses 25, 26). Then, having seen Him and heard Him, she went to tell others, "Come, see a man, * * * the Christ." Thus she believed, and many others because of her testimony, and many more because of His own words to them, for because of their entreaties He abode with them two days. Andrew brought Simon, Philip brought Nathanael, this woman brought others, but what of those who never seem to bring any or even care to? By the Spirit the ambition of Paul was "by all means to save some," "not seeking his own profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved" (1 Cor. ix, 22; x, 33).

The disciples were surprised that the Saviour seemed no longer to be either hungry or thirsty, and His reply must have perplexed them: "I have meat to eat that ye know not of. * * * My meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to finish His work" (verses 32, 34). He is still saying to us verses 35, 36, but have we ears to hear, or are they dull of hearing? Ate we coveting the fruit unto life eternal, fruit unto holiness, fruit unto the glory of God, fruit that may abound to our account (verse 36, Rom. vi, 22; vii, 4; Phil. i, 11; iv, 17), or, although saved, are we still given to minding earthly things?

JEWEL FOR MRS. BAKER EDDY

Beautiful Evidence of Honor Conferred by the French Government.

The jeweled insignia of an officer d'Academie, the honor recently conferred upon Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, by the French government, was presented to Mrs. Eddy in recognition of literary achievements at her new home in Newton, Mass., the other day by Dr. John H. Worthington, president of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Concord, N. H.

The jewel is the gift of the members of the Concord church, who obtained it in France, says a Boston dispatch to the New York Times. The insignia consists of an olive and a palm branch, formed into a wreath, attached to a crescent composed of five white diamonds, suspended from a royal purple ribbon. The leaves of the palm and olive branches are set with sixty-five diamonds, and the olive berries are represented by rubies, of which there are five stones.

A PORTO RICAN CUSTOM.

Prayers For the Dying Recited in the Public Streets.

"A few evenings ago while we were at dinner in our hotel," writes an American author visiting in Porto Rico, "we heard the tinkling of a small bell just outside the hotel doors. Instantly Salvador, the waiter, stopped in the little bustling run with which he waits on the guests, hurriedly procured a candle, lighted it and carried it out on the balcony. Almost as soon as that candle was on the balcony railing we three Americans were beside it, questioning Salvador, for we were sure something unusual was going on.

"We saw a procession of many people, led by two priests, coming down the street, each person bearing in his hand a lighted candle. They stopped in front of a house facing the hotel, and Salvador told us that somebody was dying there and they were praying for his soul. Up and down the street as far as we could see on every balcony railing was burning either a candle or a kerosene lamp.

"From the absorbed interest of the people gathered in front of open doors and windows of the afflicted house the sufferer was apparently trying to die in full view of the spectators.

"Presently the bell began to ring again, the procession formed once more, and they all moved up the street, Salvador telling us in explanation that there was a second person dying and they were now going to pray for him."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning Feb. 9, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Ministering to strangers and the sick.—Matt. xxv, 31-46.

The life of Christ was a life of ministering. He Himself said, "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." The supreme service that Christ rendered unto the world was the giving of Himself on the cross "as a ransom for many," but He who gives the greatest was also willing to give the least, and during His public ministry Christ gave Himself in service to His fellow men. The sacred historian tells us that "He went about doing good." In this respect, as in all others, Christ is to be our example. In His name we are to be kind to strangers and to visit the sick.

The "stranger and the sick" refers, of course, to those outside of our own households. Yet we need to remember that in our wider service for Christ we are not to neglect the members of our own family circles. Christ believed in beginning at home in all things. He came first to His own people, then to the world. He healed Peter's wife's mother when she was sick with the fever. He visited Martha and Mary when Lazarus died. On the cross He provided for the future of Mary, His mother. Contrary to the spirit of Christ, many Christians speak kind words to strangers and harsh ones at home. They can carry flowers to the distant sick, but not a blossom to a loved one sick in their own household. Many a man's work in the slums and many a woman's zeal in foreign missions is entirely discounted by the well known fact that they neglect their own homes. This is a false conception of Christianity. Christianity begins at home and widens from that as a center or it has no beginning. Young people think no less of the wants and needs of outsiders, but think more of anxious fathers and worried mothers who are giving their lives for you, and, while ministering to others, do not neglect to minister unto them by kind words and deeds and thoughtful care for their needs and desires.

But, while Christianity begins at home, it should not end there. Some people make this mistake. They have no interests beyond their own firesides. Lazarus may starve at their gates so their tables are well supplied. A neighbor may be sick, but what is that to them if only there be no sickness among those dear to them? But this is not the spirit of true Christianity. Our sympathy, prayers and ministries are to embrace the stranger and the sick beyond our own doors, even to the uttermost parts of the earth. Strangers visiting our churches and Endeavor prayer meetings are to be welcomed. The stranger to God is to be led to Him through Jesus Christ. The unsaved strangers across the seas and in our own land are to have the gospel sent to them. The sick are especially to be the objects of our care. To be sick is grievous enough, but to be sick and unremembered and unvisited makes the heart sick in addition to the body. Sin sick souls are to be led to Christ. In a word, in the name of Christ and for His sake let us be polite and kind to all and thoughtful of the rights, the feelings and the needs of all. Then Christ can say to us, "Well done."

There will be the usual services at the regular hours at the Second Baptist church, Sunday.

Regular services at the Union Bible school at the South Pearl street church Sunday afternoon.

The revival services at the Second M. E. church will continue indefinitely. The pastor, Rev. Carpenter, is being assisted by Evangelist Shawker, of Louisville, Ky. Meetings every night. All are welcome.

Pastors, or those who have charge of the advertising department of the churches are requested to send in the announcement of church services on Sundays on Friday morning before nine o'clock in order that they may be placed on our church page, which is open for the use of the churches of this city and community.

There will be the usual Lord's Day services at St. Paul's M. E. church Sunday morning and evening

CUNNING BIRDS.

Stratagem of the Lapwing and the Hare of the Thrush.

"The goose is a flightful bird," said a nature fable. "He quite puts me to shame."

"Really?"
"Really. You know how the goose, when you draw near it, hisses? Well, with that hissing sound it says: 'Scott, beware. I am a serpent.' Yes, from primeval times the goose has acted this lie. The primeval goose mother, sitting on her eggs in a place of reeds and sedge, would not fly when an intruder appeared; but, keeping her body concealed amid the leaves, she would stretch out her long, flexible neck and hiss wickedly. 'A snake in the grass,' the intruder would say to himself as he retreated, and on her eggs the goose would chuckle in a sly, contemptuous way.

"The lapwing is another liar. Approach her nest and she sets up a distressful crying and runs back and forth in front of you, trailing one wing as though it were broken. You follow. You think to snatch her up in your hands. With this lie she lures you away from her young.

"The thrush in time of drought beats with his feet on the grass like a clog dancer. Thus he lies to the earthworms. He makes them think that it is raining. Up they come in silent haste, and the deceitful thrush makes a rich meal."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WELL BURIED.

Two Funerals For One Man Provided For by His Will.

Curious directions for the disposal of his remains were left by John Robert Pringle of Catford, who died leaving an estate of gross value of £8,049 3s. 3d. The testator directed:

The pastor, Dr. V. W. Tevis of St. Mary's Catholic church Sunday at the regular hours, conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Cronin.

At the United Presbyterian church Sunday, Rev. W. F. Clark, the pastor, will preach both morning and evening. The other services will be at the usual hours.

The services at the First Presbyterian church, Sabbath school will be held at 9:15 a. m.; morning service at 10:30; evening service at 7 o'clock; subject at this hour, "Who has Gone Astray." Christian Endeavor at 6 o'clock; topic, "Ministering to Strangers." You are most cordially invited to all these services. Provision has been made for good music at these services. Evangelistic services proper will begin Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, with a song service under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Willis. Mr. Willis will also preach at these meetings. Come and participate in these services. We are anxious to do you good.

At the Main Street Christian church, the pastor, Rev. R. W. Aberley, will preach Sunday morning on "The Glorious Church," and in the evening his subject will be "The Need of the Present Age." Bible school at 9:15; Christian Endeavor at 6 o'clock; W. O. Headlee's Teachers' Training class will meet at 9:15 a. m.

"After my decease I desire that a competent and trustworthy doctor of medicine shall, by any experiment he may deem suitable, thoroughly satisfy himself that life is absolutely extinct. My carcass is to be cremated and the residuum thereof deposited in two metal urns, numbered respectively 1 and 2. On the ashes in No. 1 are to be placed a packet, which will be found on my desk, and my miniature portrait scarf-pin, and on the ashes in urn No. 2 a similar packet, which also will be found on my desk, and my miniature portrait finger ring."

He directed that the urns were then to be soldered down and No. 1 buried in his mother's grave at Newport Pagnell and the other in "my dear Lizzie's grave" in the Streatham cemetery at Tooting. He also enjoined his son to see that the graves of his mother and of the testator's mother were properly looked after.—London Mail.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 7, 1908

It begins to look as if it will soon be regarded a distinction for a lawyer to enter congress and help frame bills for the supreme court to declare unconstitutional.

Some people complain because of the lowly position they occupy. If one wants to get out of it he can never do it by complaining but by being effective in it. The man who does that is sure of promotion.

The Democrats are in a sad predicament. Their presidential timber is very scattering and so envied that only one stick can be cut out and that is Bryanwood. On the other hand the Republican forest is so thick with available timber that the greatest difficulty is in selection.

The following pithy comment by the South Bend Times should be read by every young man:

"Get a move on you, young man. Prove yourself worthy of the place you now fill and thus pave the way for something better, higher and more remunerative. Carelessness and indifference will stand against you. Earnestness, energy, vigor and excellence of workmanship will serve as a passport to promotion, to advancement, to distinction and eventually to a competence. For time-killers there is no bright future. For time-utilizers there is every assurance of success."

Some husbands do not know their wives until after they are buried, and then they erect costly monuments on which are inscribed the virtues that were not recognized in life. More time spent at home and less in other associations would enable them to know more of their wives and children and home would be the happier for it. So, too, there are wives who seem to think that their mission in life is to attend all kinds of social functions to the neglect of their domestic duties. They are strangers to their husbands and children and as a consequence the foundations of the home are weakened.

The clean or bloodless election sentiment is spreading in Republican party circles and it is fast becoming a fixed rule. In some places the Republican Central committees have even gone so far as to ask the various candidates for office to refrain from treating. This naturally would stop the supplies of a gang of parasites that hang onto the men who aspire for office, and it will eventually even do more than that. It is recognized that the day of the crooked man in politics is coming to an end. Trimmers, two-faced hypocrites and agreement breakers have found their path increasingly difficult, and now the poor man is placed on a level with the rich in running for the nomination, things look as if the professional corruptionists was at the end of his power.

The Chicago Tribune recently made a second canvas as to the strength of the various presidential candidates. The result of this test shows Taft to be in the lead. Of course, the favorite sons lead in their own States, as for instance in New York Hughes received 171 votes, Taft 58, Roosevelt 19, Cannon 6, Fairbanks 3, Foraker 5, Root 2 and LaFollette and Cortelyou none.

Pennsylvania gives Knox 209, Taft, 83, Roosevelt 37, Hughes 23, Cannon 2, LaFollette 2, Foraker 3, Root 2, and Fairbanks, Cortelyou, and Cummins blanks.

In Illinois, Uncle Joe Cannon gets 125 votes, Taft 85, Roosevelt 45, Hughes 23, LaFollette 9, Knox 1, Fairbanks 2, Root and Cortelyou each one; Foraker and Cummins, none.

The same story is told in Indiana. There the vice president is credited with 108 votes, Taft 30, Roosevelt 4; Hughes 2, Cannon 1, Foraker 2 and the rest nothing at all.

Wisconsin 144 votes were cast for LaFollette, 99 for Taft, 21 for Hughes 13, for Roosevelt, 6 for Cannon and none for anyone else.

There is this important difference between a friend and kin: Every time you see the friend you don't have to explain something.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 7.—President John Mitchell and Thomas L. Lewis, who will succeed him on April 1, deny that the mine workers' organization is being used to boost Judge George Gray of Delaware for the nomination for president and Secretary Taft for the Republican nomination. Reports to that effect have been sent out from here during the last few days. Among the mine workers there is a very friendly feeling toward Judge Gray because of his attitude during the anthracite strike, but the organization is not working for him. Neither is it working for Secretary Taft. Mr. Lewis says that the Ohio Federation of Labor, of which he is a member, submitted some questions to Secretary Taft and Senator Foraker, but he doesn't know what reply was made. He declares that the reason the questions were submitted only to the candidates in Ohio was that the federation didn't think it should go outside its own state in such matters. Mr. Lewis refused to say whether or not Secretary Taft is satisfactory to the laboring classes in Ohio.

After a session in which the advisability of holding an early convention was thoroughly discussed, the Democratic state committee late yesterday afternoon decided that its party's ticket shall be nominated March 25 and 26, notwithstanding the fact that shortly after the committee had assembled April 15 and 16 were agreed on as the dates for the convention. This was a compromise between those who wanted an early convention and those who insisted on a late one. When the committee thought the matter was disposed of, a score of members of the Democratic State Editorial association, headed by A. B. Crampton of Delphi and Henry A. Barnhart of Rochester, asked for a hearing. They insisted that if the convention was to be held as early as April 15, the Democrats might as well go the Republicans one better by having their convention ahead of the latter. A half dozen editors said that to wait until April 15, after the Republicans had nominated their ticket and adopted a platform by the second of the same month, would not be an advantage to their party. They asserted that it would not give them proper time to dissect the Republican platform, and that in their opinion the Democrats ought to take the initiative by adopting their platform first. The point was emphasized by the editors that moral issues probably will be paramount in the campaign, and that by holding their convention first the Democrats could steal the thunder the Republicans expect to claim as their very own. The editors declared that it is likely that the party will declare in favor of local option, and that under the circumstances they may as well have the credit of declaring for it first. Backed by the editors, the committee changed the dates to March 25 and 26. All of the committee except Ellingham of the Eighth, Hoffman of the Twelfth, and Frank Kistler of Logansport, holding a proxy from the Eleventh, voted in favor of these dates. The other dates were agreed on after Hoffman had made a motion to that effect.

The meeting of the Democratic committee and editors has attracted many well-known party men to the city this week. That the Democrats are full of fighting spirit and are more hopeful than they have been for a long time was apparent from the views they expressed. Nearly every man said that the time for Democratic victory has arrived and that the Democrats can win if they make an aggressive fight. The candidacy of Senator Slack for the nomination for governor was formally announced yesterday afternoon. He has been canvassing the state for several months, and believes his boom is in good shape. Among the party leaders who came for the meeting were Joseph Cravens, the well-known Madison politician, who is a candidate for the nomination for congress in the Fourth district, and William H. O'Brien of Lawrenceburg, formerly state chairman. The latter is still active in politics and is confident that Bryan will be nominated and elected. Another active Democrat here was Harry Strickland of Greenfield, who is a candidate for speaker of the next house.

Technical Education For Shop Hands.

Technical education in agriculture seems to be safe. The voices of legislators and of prominent men in all walks of life are heard in its favor. But the battle for widespread technical education for toilers in the mechanical trades is but just begun. Forces either indirectly or directly antagonistic to the spread of technical skill are more or less organized, while effective public opinion on the other side must be created.

In the past it has generally been possible for boys who had to make their way in the world to choose what they would do. But times are rapidly changing. There is fierce competition in the markets for the products of mechanical handicrafts. The machine is depended upon to turn out cheap goods, and the toiler at the machine soon becomes a mere machine himself with little chance for improvement. He has a job, but is not master of a trade. Mr. Carnegie says, "The apprenticeship system is a thing of the past." Then technical schools must supply the needed opportunity for a boy who wants to learn a trade and learn it as well as was possible under the apprenticeship system. The promoters of industrial education in this country are already looking forward to compulsion in the matter of the establishment of technical schools and of attendance. It is a drastic measure, but perhaps in no other way can technical education in schools be made general and also, in a sense, popular. The popularity of the system may be taken for granted after there is a good showing of results.

When the service pension system, under which it was unnecessary to produce evidence of wounds or illness incurred in the war became effective, there was a prevalent belief, which found wide expression, that the privileges it conferred would show the existence of a large "unknown army" of veterans who had not previously applied for pensions, but who would immediately come forward as claimants. The statement is made that the number of new pensioners under the act has so far been only 6,861. The "unknown army" apparently proved to be not much larger than a good sized brigade.

A SPANISH TRICK.

The Incident Which Moved England to Turn Drake Loose.

The relations between which Drake's raid into the south sea had for a time threatened with open rupture had greatly improved—at least in outward appearance—and in 1585, under special promises of immunity from molestation on religious or other grounds, Philip had invited to his ports a fleet of English corn ships in order to supply the deficiency of his own harvests. No sooner, however, had the English ships arrived than an embargo was laid upon them and their crews arrested.

One ship, the famous Primrose of London, managed to escape. While lying off Bilbao quietly discharging her cargo she had been visited by the corregidor of Biscay and his guard disguised as merchants. Suddenly called upon to surrender, the crew hung themselves upon the standards, drove them all overboard and made sail. Some of the discomfited Spaniards as the shore boats fled were seen clinging to the English vessel. These were humanely rescued and carried in triumph back to England, and among them was the corregidor himself. Upon him were found his official instructions, setting forth expressly that the embargo was ordered for the purposes of the expedition which Philip was preparing against the queen and the powerful public opinion of commercial circles in London, which had obstinately clung to pacific relations with Spain. A retaliatory embargo was proclaimed, letters of general reprisal were issued, and Drake was let loose.—From Publication of Navy Records Society.

Friends of the deceased may view the remains all day Saturday and Sunday morning at the late residence.

MOUNT FUJIYAMA.

Japanese Pilgrimage to Its Tempest Swept Summit.

To the people of Japan the mount Fujiyama is sacred. The meaning of the word is "honorable mountain." During that brief six weeks of summer when Fujiyama's wind swept sides are climbable, writes A. H. Edwards in "Kakemono," the pilgrims come in thousands, in ten thousands. They dress themselves in white from head to foot. They carry long staves of pure white wood in their hands, each stamped with the temple crest, and in bands and companies they climb the mountain.

Always the leader at their head, his staff crowned with a tinkling mass of bells, like tiny cymbals, chants the hymn of Fujiyama. For six short summer weeks they come. Then the winds rush down, the snow falls, the tempests rage, and Lord Fujiyama lives alone.

No human being has yet stayed a winter on his summit, and even in the summer weeks the winds will blow the lava blocks from the walls of the rest houses and sometimes the pilgrim from the path.

Fujiyama stands alone, not one peak among a range, but utterly alone. Rising straight out of the sea on one side and from the great Tokyo plain on the other, his 12,385 feet in two long curving lines of exquisite grace rise up and up into the blue, and not an inch of one foot is hidden or lost. It is all there, visible as a tower built on a treeless plain. It dominates the landscape. It can be seen from thirteen provinces, and from a hundred miles at sea the pale white peak of Fujiyama floats above the blue.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

The First Gas Bag and the First Dirigible Balloon.

On the 1st of December, 1783, when the first gas balloon rose from the Tuilleries, carried up by Charles and Robert, the Marquis de Villeroi, an octogenarian and skeptic, declared it was tempting God himself. He was rolled in his armchair to a window of his chateau to witness the impossibility of such an ascension. But the moment the aeronaut, gayly saluting the spectators, rose in the air, the old man, passing suddenly from the most complete incredulity to unlimited faith in the power of genius, fell upon his knees and exclaimed: "O men, ye will find the secret of never dying! And it will be when I am dead!"

The public, easily confounding the atmospheric with the astronomic heavens, already hailed the day when the aeronaut would continue his aerial course to the moon, to Venus, to Mars or Jupiter.

Pierre Giffard, then Dupuy de Lome, tried the first dirigible balloons. Later Captains Renard and Krebs in their aeroplanes, La France, went from Meudon to Paris and back at the same time that Gaston Tissandier was carrying out his fine experiments. But all progress was soon stopped by the weakness of the motors compared to their weight.

Nothing further could be done until the arrival of the explosive motor. In fact, it was the improvement in automobiles which won us the conquest of the air.

Hands and Feet.

It is said that Disraeli was prouder of his small hands than of all his great mental accomplishments. This was presumably because they were badges of aristocracy in their evidence that he had not been brought up to labor, and he worshiped aristocracy. And small feet of the same character—evidences that the possessor did not go barefoot when a child. Generations of carefully shod children of the nobility developed this characteristic of those of "gentle blood" as distinguished from the commonality. But such proofs of superiority were not meekly endured. In due time brainy commoners discovered that the "artistic hand" was not small, but long and slender, and then came the athlete multitude, who scorn small hands and feet as evidences of effeminacy.—Indianapolis Star.

Obituary.

Many people of this community were shocked with grief at the announcement of the death of Mrs. Phebe Conaway, or "Aunt Phebe" as she was usually called, which took place Saturday evening at 10:30 Feb. 1st. Aunt Phebe had been in poor health for several months, but was confined to her bed only two weeks. During all this time, she never complained, but said she was ready to go.

She was the mother of fifteen children, of whom nine are living. She also leaves one full sister, one half sister and one brother, besides a host of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Her life was one of useful deeds and righteous living and her pleasant smiles and cheerful greeting will be missed by all.

Mrs. Conaway was the daughter of the late George Allender and was born Oct. 1st, 1831. She was married April 1st, 1848, to Mr. Samuel Conaway at the early age of seventeen; she united with the Arlington Christian church in the year 1854, at the dedication of the new church to which she was very loyal and faithful. So we know there is something for her beyond this life that is eternal; even a sure haven of rest. This provision for the pure and good is her reward, and we trust we shall all meet her there after we shall have assayed over this great ocean of sorrow.

May God in pity infinite, Now comfort those behind, To those whose hearts are bleeding sore,

May He be more than kind, And teach us patience, faith and trust. Tho' the shadow nearer creeps, When the awakening comes they'll find some day, She is not dead, but sleeps.

The Sundial at Yale.

About the time of the Yale bicentennial celebration in 1901 some wag presented the university with a perfectly good sundial, which was elaborately advertised in the New York papers and with due solemnity set up in a conspicuous place on Berkeley oval. "The blamed thing never did take very well," the Record explained apropos of the trouble sundry undergraduates got into in trying to run off with the main-spring of it, and the grotesque grandeur of this expensive and beautiful piece of architecture set the Owl off into paroxysms of laughter in which the campus followed with a will. "Shay, Jack, what time is it?" "I can't tell you, old fel; this sundial's stopped." And, "Hey, fresh, out there by the sundial! Strike a match and see if it isn't bedtime!" are typical.—E. R. Embree in Bohemian.

ELEVEN

THE park was very misty and damp and still that February morning. Far away on the wooded bridle path the dulled double gallop of horses sounded, now muffled in a hollow, now louder, jarring the rising ground, nearer, heavier, then suddenly checked to a trample, as Sylvia drew bridle by the reservoir and, straightening in her saddle, raised her flushed face to the sky.

"Rain?" she asked as Quarrier, controlling his beautiful, restive horse, ranged up alongside of her.

"Probably," he said, scarcely glancing at the sky, where, above the great rectangular lagoons, hundreds of sea gulls, high in the air, hung flapping, stemming some rushing upper gale unfelt below.

On their daily rides together it was her custom to discuss practical matters concerning their future, and it was his custom to listen until pressed for a suggestion, an assent or a reply.

Billy Fleetwood, little by little, became aware of an indefinable change in the man. For one thing, he had grown more reticent. At times, too, his reserve seemed to have something almost surly about it. Under his cold composure a hint of something concealed, watchful and very quiet.

Confidences she had never looked for in him nor desired. It appalled her at moments to realize how little they had in common and that only on the surface—a communion of superficial interest incident to the fulfillment of social duties and the pursuit of pleasure. Beyond that she knew nothing of him, required nothing of him. What was there to know? What to require?

Now that the main line of her route through life had been surveyed and carefully laid out, what was there more for her in life than to set out upon her progress? It was her own road. Presumptive leader already, logical leader from the day she married—leader, in fact, when the ukase, her future legacy, so decreed. It was a royal road laid out for her through the gardens and pleasant places. A road for her alone, and over it she had chosen to pass. What more was there to desire?

From the going of Seward all that he had aroused in her of love, of intelligence, of wholesome desire and sane curiosity—the intellectual restlessness, the capacity for passion, the renaissance of the simpler innocence—had subsided into the laissez faire of dull quiescence.

Riding there, head bent, her pulses timing the slow pacing of her horse, she presently became aware, without looking up, that Quarrier was watching her. She moved slightly in her saddle to look at him and for an instant fancied that there was something furtive in his eyes. Only for an instant, for he quickly picked up the thread of conversation where she had dropped it, saying that it had been raining for the last ten minutes and that they might as well turn their horses toward shelter.

Without reason, through and through her shot a shiver of loneliness—utter loneliness and isolation. Without reason, because from him she expected nothing, required nothing, except what he offered—the emotionless reticence of indifference, the composure of perfect formality. What did she want, then—companions? She had them. Friends? She could scarcely escape from them. Intimates? She had only to choose one or a hundred attuned responsive to her every mood, every caprice. Lonely? With the men of New York crowding, shouldering, crushing their way to her feet? Lonely? With the women of New York struggling already for precedence in her favor?—omen significant of the days to come, of those future years diamond linked in one unbroken, triumphant glitter.

"About that Amalgamated Electric company," she began without prelude. "Would you mind answering a question or two, Howard?"

"You could not understand it," he said, unpleasantly disturbed by her abruptness.

"As you please. It is quite true I can make nothing of what the newspapers are saying about it, except that Mr. Plank seems to be doing a number of things."

"Injunctions and other matters," observed Quarrier.

"Is anybody going to lose any money in it?"

"Who, for example?"

"Why—you, for example," she said, laughing.

"I don't expect to."

"Then it is going to turn out all right? And Mr. Plank and Kemp Ferrall and the major and—the other people interested are not going to be almost ruined by the intercounty people?"

"Do you think a man like Plank is likely to be ruined, as you say, by Amalgamated Electric?"

"No. But Kemp and the major—"

"I think the major is out of danger," replied Quarrier, looking at her with the new, sullen narrowing of his eyes.

"I am glad of that. Is Kemp—and the others?"

"Ferrall could stand it if matters go wrong. What others?"

"Why—the other owners and stockholders—"

"What others? Who do you mean?"

"Mr. Seward, for example," she said in an even voice, leaning over to pat her horse's neck with her gloved hand.

"Mr. Seward must take the chances we all take," observed Quarrier.

"But, Howard, it would really mean ruin for him if matters went badly. Wouldn't it?"

"I am not familiar with the details of Mr. Seward's investments."

"Nor am I," she said slowly.

She spoke about other things. He responded in his impassive manner. Presently she turned her horse, and Quarrier wheeled his, facing a warm, fine rain slanting thickly from the south.

His silky Vandyke beard was all wet with the moisture. She noticed it, and unbidden arose the vision of the gunroom at Shotover—Quarrier's soft beard wet with rain, the phantoms of people passing and repassing, Seward's straight figure swinging past, silhouetted against the glare of light from the billiard room. And here she made an effort to efface the vision, shutting her eyes as she rode there in the rain, but clearly against the closed lids she saw the phantoms passing—specters of dead hours, the wraith of an old happiness masked with youth and wearing Seward's features!

She saw herself beside him among the cushions; tasted again the rose petals that her lips had stripped from the blossoms; saw once more the dawn of something in his steady eyes; felt his arm about her, his breath—

Her horse, suddenly spurred, bounded forward through the rain, and she rode breathless, with her lips half parted, as if afraid, turning her head to look behind—as though she could out-ride the phantom clinging to her stirrup, masked like youth, wearing the shadowy eyes of love!

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this:

It's the best proof, for it comes from Rushville.

James McCann, 633 W. Fifth street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I had trouble with my back and kidneys and was laid up with lumbago. I could not bend to lift anything or stand erect. I had severe pains in my back which extended to all parts of my body. At times I had dizzy spells and felt uncomfortable unless I had something to grasp for support. My kidneys gave me much annoyance and I had more or less rheumatism. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and learning of their merits, went to F. B. Johnson & Company's drug store and got a box. I can truthfully say that they cleared up my system of all those troubles promptly and today I am in good health. I have every reason to think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them to other sufferers."

AMUSEMENTS

Both the Grand and Vaudeville theatres will have change of programs tonight. New films and songs.

Skating every night at the Kramer rink.

Vaudeville next Tuesday night at the Grand theatre. Eight acts.

The attraction which will hold the boards at the Auditorium in Connersville Monday night promises to be one of the most talked of productions of the current season. It is from the pen of Mr. Ben Jerome, composer of the "Isle of Spice" and "The Royal Chef," and while it is announced as a companion show to those two successful productions, it is graded so the advance notices say much higher musically than either of his former successes. "The Yankee Regent," is in two acts and has for its locale a German principality presided over by a Yankee, poetic politician, who has been appointed "Regent" and whose propensity for creating complications, in which he figures as the c incidentally furnishes fun, is said to be prolific. Contrary to the custom, which seems to have been adopted by comic opera book writers, the part assigned the comedian, Mr. John Collins, is not a legitimate comedy role full of splendid situations that afford the fun makers much chance, and the whole is splendidly augmented by a host of catchy musical numbers, a half hundred sprightly eye fillers in the big chorus and a cast of principals whose names have found lodgment in the programs of the best of this and other season's successes. Rushville patrons of the Connersville theatre can secure tickets of Frank Lyons at the local traction station.

WHICH STORY DO YOU WANT?

The Daily Republican wishes to ascertain which of the following stories is desired for the next serial to be published after the present story, "The Fighting Chance," is finished. The story receiving the most requests will be printed next and the other stories in order of standing. Send us your preference by card, phone or personal call before February 10 h. Following is a list of a few of the stories we can secure for publication in the Republican.

The Mystery

By Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams. To the worth of this story there are two substantial tributes—first, that it was run as a serial by the London Sphere, a publication noted for its discrimination in the selection of serials and which rarely uses an American story; second, that "The Mystery" was one of the "good sellers" of 1907. This is a story of mystery and adventure on new lines. The style is graphic and forceful as the "copy" of a skillful reporter of an important news event. The part of the hero, unfolds gradually until he stands revealed as the rarest combination of whimsical humor and cool courage ever presented, perhaps in fiction. The narrative, which conveys the impression of reality, not fiction, is swift and alluring, holding the interest of the reader as with hooks of steel.

His Courtship

By Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie: A Menoponite Maid." In the main this story is a record of the adventures of a young Doctor of Philosophy, who conspires to play the humble role of hired hand at Mr. Morningstar's farm boarding house that he may have opportunity for serious and scholarly meditations and avoid the blandishments of fascinating young lady boarders. The resulting complications make a story as rich in humor as provocative of laughter as any that has been written in recent years. The characters are as interesting as one's intimate friends.

The Plow Woman

By Eleanor Gates, author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl." A story of the winning of the west; of the ways and wiles of the savage Sioux; of brave soldiers and daring frontiersmen; of a stubborn hate coming down from the civil war; of love tender, brave and true. He who reads shall know that a tale of Dakota of thirty years ago may kindle and inspire as much as any story of times remote; that the says of romance are near, not far off. The narrative begins quietly and rises steadily in interest to a climax as absorbing and inspiring as has been presented in any novel or drama, old or new.

Richard the Brazen

By Cyrus Townsend Brady, author of "The Southerner." "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc., and Edwad Peple, author of "A Broken Rosary," "The Prince Chap," etc. In "Richard the Brazen" we put before the reader a knight errant worthy of the best days of chivalry, though he is of the present, and we find him in the garb of a cowboy. The superb courage with which he rescues (from certain death a young woman whom he had never before seen, and the reckless daring with which he risks his reputation in attempt to win this woman under an assumed name, will appeal strongly to every lover of romance and admirer of courage. How Richard prospered in his enterprise under difficulties which would discourage any but the most stout hearted we leave the reader to find out, and a most delightful pastime it will prove.

The King of Diamonds

By Louis Tracy, author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," etc. Gripping the reader fast with its tale of the astounding transformation, in one day, of a ragged London waif into the possessor of incalculable wealth, this story by Louis Tracy measures up fully to the standard of this romancer's other popular tales. In the unfolding of the story he depicts not merely the change in the hero's material circumstances, but the interesting development of his character. The stirring adventures in which Philip Anson became embroiled by reason of his suddenly acquired riches, literally sent to him from heaven, his loyalty to the girl friend of his childhood and his manly devotion with Mr. Tracy's well known skill.

Red Saunders

By Henry Wallace Phillips. This is the famous story of Red Sanders, big Red, tough Red of the plains and mines. We shall follow this expansive man through his days of toughness and sinfulness up to the great day of his life, the day that shall bring the metamorphosis of Red. This trumpeter will not give the story away by indicating how this transformation shall come about—whether through the remorse or repentance of Red, his conviction of sin, his fear of the damnation of the wicked, his yearning for the peace that passeth understanding, or whether it shall be the love of woman that shall bring this giant to his knees and make him as a little child. The trumpeter will only promise that this conversion of Red shall be one of the most interesting and delicious episodes in all fiction, which the reader will enjoy and doubtless remember through all the years of his life.

SON SHOT FATHER

"Jim" Hargis, Noted Kentucky Feud Leader Slain by His Own Son.

ENDS LIFE OF VIOLENCE

Man Accused of Complicity in Many Bloody Deeds Falls the Victim of a Drunken Patricide.

Review of the Crimes That Have For Years Cast Blot on Breathitt County.

Jackson, Ky., Feb. 7.—Former County Judge James Hargis, for many years member of the state Democratic executive committee, accused of complicity in many murders, and a prominent figure in the feuds which have disrupted Breathitt county for several years, was shot and killed in his general store here about 3:30 Thursday afternoon by his son, Beach Hargis. The son fired five shots in rapid succession at his father, who fell dead while his clerks were waiting on customers. The exact cause of the murder has not been learned, but it is supposed to have been the result of differences which have existed between father and son for some time. The two men are reported to have had a severe quarrel several nights ago, when the father, it is alleged, was compelled to resort to violence to restrain his son. Young Hargis, it is said, has been drinking heavily of late. He came into the store late yesterday afternoon and was apparently under the influence of liquor. Judge Hargis, it is said, spoke to his son about his drinking and a quarrel resulted. Father and son stepped behind a counter in the store, when the son, after only a few minutes' conversation, drew a revolver and fired five shots. Four took effect, the noted mountain character falling dead. Young Hargis was arrested and placed in jail. He was raving like a maniac and the officers were compelled to drag him to jail.

Judge Hargis has been for years a prominent figure in Kentucky in political and criminal circles. He has figured in the courts in the mountains for years on account of the murders of Dr. Cox, Attorney Marcum and Jim Cockrill. Judge Hargis was the political leader of the Democrats of the Tenth district and was the "boss" of Breathitt county. For years his sway was not opposed, but some years ago Mr. Marcum had the temerity to oppose Hargis in a law case. From that date Marcum was a marked man.

Judge Hargis had been on trial at various times for complicity in the murders of James B. Marcum, Jim Cockrill and Dr. Cox, but had secured an acquittal on all the charges. He was recently forced to pay a judgment of $8,000 to Mrs. Marcum in connection with the death of her husband, a verdict having been found against him in the circuit court at Winchester.

Judge Hargis had just disposed of this, the last of the numerous cases in which he had been involved by his connection with the Hargis-Cockrill feud, when he paid a check of over $11,000 to Mrs. Marcum. Mrs. Marcum had sued Judge Hargis and others for $100,000, alleging that they caused the death of her husband. Though Judge Hargis was acquitted of the charge of having murdered Marcum, the Winchester jury awarded Mrs. Marcum $8,000 damages against him. The Hargis-Cockrill feud, out of which grew the almost innumerable tragedies with which Judge Hargis's name is linked, had its inception in a political contest. The Hargises had long been dominant in Breathitt county, where they conducted a general store, were engaged in the lumber business and were generally active. The brothers, James, Alex and Elbert, were good business men, and accumulated what in the mountains is a great fortune.

The trouble with the Cockrills arose when the Cockrills opposed the Hargises at the polls. Feeling was bitter when one day Ben Hargis, a younger brother of Judge James Hargis, met one of the Cockrill boys in a blind tiger near Jackson. There was a gun play, and Cockrill killed Ben Hargis. In the fall of 1902 came the first murder in the feud. Dr. Cox, the guardian of the Cockrill boys, was the victim. Dr. Cox lived on the outskirts of Jackson. He was called from his home one night to answer a professional call. As he entered his gate on the way home he was shot by assassins concealed across the way. Afterward John Smith, John Abner and others of the alleged Hargis band of assassins were accused of this crime, and in a confession made by one of them they asserted that Judge Hargis hired them to kill Dr. Cox. From this time on the story of the Hargis-Cockrill feud was written in blood. The next to fall was Jim Cockrill, the town marshal. But shortly after the murder of Cockrill, when interest had been mildly aroused, James B. Marcum, the attorney for the Cockrill boys, created a tremendous sensation by going to Lexington and publicly declaring that he was a "marked man," and that he had been doomed to murder by the Hargis clan. One morning in May, five years ago, Marcum went to the courthouse in Jackson to transact some business. He was standing at the door of the courthouse, talking to Captain Ewen, after noted as a witness, when a shot rang out. Marcum staggered from the steps and fell dying, but the assassin stepped up and, to make sure, shot him again through the back of the head.

The assassin was Curt Jett, the "wild dog," who has since confessed his part in this tragedy, and who was accused of the others. He and Tom White are now serving life sentences in the penitentiary.

OUT OF BONDAGE

Raisuli at Last Gives Up Sir Harry MacLean.

Tangier, Feb. 7.—Caid Sir Harry MacLean, commander of the sultan's bodyguard and next to the sultan the most influential man in Morocco, has arrived here under an escort from the bandit Raisuli, who has held him under bondage for the past seven months. He was brought here in accordance with the agreement which the British government finally succeeded in making with Raisuli for his release. In return for which Great Britain will pay $100,000 to Raisuli and guarantee him protection and immunity from arrest.

The capture of Caid MacLean was carefully planned. He went out to meet Raisuli alone in order to persuade the bandit chief to resume a peaceful mode of life. Later Raisuli sent a message to the sultan announcing the capture of the commander of his bodyguard and informing his majesty that he would hold the general a prisoner until terms that he submitted were granted. These terms included the payment of a large indemnity and his reappointment to the governorship of Tangier.

Subsequently the British government took the negotiations upon its shoulders, finally succeeding in bringing Raisuli to terms.

Negroes Desert Foraker.

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 7.—There was considerable disorder at the Republican state convention yesterday afternoon, with the Foraker and Taft forces opposing each other. When the disorder subsided the faction led by Joseph E. Lee, a negro, met and passed a resolution endorsing Taft.

DEVELOPING A NEW WHEAT.

The Seed Are Selected With a Microscope.

E. P. House of Greeley, Colo., who is seeking to develop a wheat which shall partake of the firm characteristics of the durum and have the qualities of the Egyptian wheat, especially as to yield, is carefully sorting by hand the result of the cross of these two varieties in order to secure the finest seed for planting in the spring, says a Greeley (Colo.) correspondent of the Denver Republican. Mr. House shelled his wheat by hand and with a microscope selects only the largest grains. So careful is he that not more than one sheaf a day is handled.

Another combination which Mr. House will try in the spring is to plant winter and ordinary spring rye in February, hoping that both may flower at the same time and cross the result in a hardy variety of spring rye. The rye will also be crossed with popcorn, and House says he believes he can in this way produce a fine breakfast food. He has a seven acre tract one mile west of Greeley, where his experiments are made.

DEVERY ON DOG COPS

Will Not Succeed In New York, Declares Ex-Police Chief.

"CONDITIONS AGAINST 'EM."

Discusses Faults and Failings of the Four Dogs and Decides They Won't Do—Might Work All Right Up In the Adirondacks, He Says.

William S. Devery, New York's former police chief, whose knowledge of police ways is great, has a poor opinion of the experiments being made with the New York police department's dogs.

"No, I ain't got no opinion about the dogs," he said recently to a reporter of the New York Post as he seated himself on the front third of a gilded Louis Quatorze chair in his new home, "except just this. It's all rot. It stands to reason they can't succeed. Conditions here is all against 'em. Here's a congregation of 5,000,000 souls, settled down at a seaport, with ships sailin' for every port in the world every hour of the day an' railroads comin' in an' goin' out in every direction all day long. Everything helps a crook to cover up his tracks.

"Dogs might work all right up in the Adirondacks or some other rural neighborhood, where they don't have nothin' but highwaymen to deal with an' there ain't nothin' but woods an' fields to get away over. But here there's so many heinous crimes of all sorts goin' on ev'ry minute that no dog could hold to one scent more'n a block or two. S'pose a dog goes after a crook, for one thing. In ten minutes he'll get his scent distracted by another and then another. It'll be all crisscross, an' he'll get so mixed up he'll be followin' a trail back to the station house before he really gets started. Even if he did get a real hold on a scent, before he knew it it'd lead him into the subway or the Singer building or some other place with a 'No Dogs Allowed' sign nailed up, an' all his trouble would be wasted. An' he'd stand a good chance of bein' crushed in a bridge jam or drowned off a ferryboat or run down by a scorchin' automobile every time he was on duty. 'I guess I know somethin' about dogs, an' I know somethin' about the force, too, an' this ain't the first time policemen has used dogs in their business. But they ain't never been official before. It's just like this: Some officer sees some poor mut of a dog on his beat tryin' to find a crust in a ash can. An' he speaks to him kindly an' buys him some bones, an' the poor mut follows him home an' becomes his friend for life.

"An' then whenever that officer goes out on beat the dog goes along. He's handy for smellin' things in dark arye-ways an' spyin' people in back yards where they don't belong. He just adds to the eye an' ear power of the officer, an' he's valuable so far as he goes. But he ain't official, an' he don't cost the city nothin'. He works for love.

"There wasn't nothin' new about these kind of assistant policemen, an' no one expected anything of 'em. That's the trouble with these big imported dogs. They've been trained so carefully an' the people an' the press has been talkin' so much about them that every one's thinkin' they're goin' to settle the problem of ferretin' out crime in this city for all time to come. If they rely on them too much they'll be fooled, that's all. Any one knows dogs knows that there is tricks that can get around them.

"I'd be willin' to bet a hundred gold-backs against a button that I could go over to Parkville an' take them four dogs away from their masters in no time. You just give me a start of a block or two, an' they could call out the reserves an' set 'em all whistlin', an' the pups'd stick to me. Any animals that could be got to desert like that ain't to be considered very valuable for police duty. It just ain't like dogs to be reliable under such emergencies.

"It's just like this. This life is a battle of brains. An' it stands to reason when you match a dog's brain against a man's brain the man's goin' to win out every time. A brainy crook could always outwit the dog, an' a brainy cop could find an' keep a clew better than he could an' wouldn't be frustrated by every cross current he come to.

"Now, s'pose one of them dogs was poundin' the road some night an' he spied a man tryin' to get into a window. An' s'pose that man was some fellow who'd stayed out late an' lost his latchkey an' that was his own house an' his wife had gone to bed an' put the lights out. Now, what's that dog goin' to do? He can't rap on the fence with his night stick an' say, 'Hey, what you doin' there?'

"An' then s'pose one of them dog cops sees a man snatch a bag from a woman an' run off down a lonely street. He's learned to chase after the runner, but what's he goin' to do when he catches him? Maybe he'll trip him, but the thief can climb fences, an' the dog can't. The dog can't make an arrest, an' he can't take his prisoner round to the station house an' have him entered on the blotter.

"No, sir, I tell you circumstances is all against these dogs. They used to use dogs in the middle ages to catch slaves an' robbers, but times is different now, an' unless you have a dog to go out with every officer—8,000 of 'em—you won't find them much good in a fraternity of 500,000 people.

"But I'm a strong believer in kindness to dumb animals, an' Bingham deserves the thanks of the community for providin' such fine berths for four dumb brutes."

The name of Clyde Kennedy, son of Robert Kennedy, of this city, formerly of Noble township is announced in today's issue as candidate for county surveyor on the Republican ticket. Mr. Kennedy is a promising young man and eminently fitted to fill the place he seeks. Four years ago he graduated from Earlham College, and since that time has been doing civil engineering work on the Missouri Pacific and Pennsylvania railroads, and on the I. & O. traction line, and lately has been assistant city civil engineer in charge of the construction of the sewers in this city.

Rules For Good Digestion.

A Simple Way to Prevent and Cure Stomach Trouble.

The sufferer from indigestion and stomach weakness should eat slowly and chew the food thoroughly.

But as the majority of people have already so abused the delicate stomach that they suffer with distress after eating, flatulence, headaches, coated tongue, spots before the eyes and the many other symptoms of indigestion, it is necessary for them to use Mi-o-na, the remedy that will strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and increase the flow of gastric juices so that indigestion will be cured.

Mi-o-na puts the whole digestion system in such shape that it can care for all the food that is eaten with out pain or distress.

Johnson's drug store give an absolute guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money unless Mi-o-na does all that is claimed for it. A guarantee like this must inspire your confidence in the remedy.

LIQUOR FIGHT IS SENT HERE

New Castle Saloon Men, with Fund of $2500 will Fight for Life

GAINED POINT IN VENUE

Is the Contention of the Saloonists of the "City of Roses"—Hot Fight Promised

The Rush circuit court is to be the scene of a vigorously and warmly contested battle between the saloon men of New Castle and the citizens who are organized there in an effort to drive the liquor men from the "City of Roses." The case is being brought here on a change of venue, the defendants claiming they could not get a fair hearing in the Henry circuit court.

One of the local papers of Henry county says the saloon men have raised a fund of $2500 to carry on their legal battles to the highest courts if necessary, while a party representing the other interest is [authority for the statement that they have $10,000 at their disposal to wage the battle of righteousness.

The venue to this county is considered by the saloonists as a point in their favor. Of the case the Indianapolis News will say this evening in a dispatch from New Castle:

"After gaining a point in their fight against the blanket remonstrance by having the case taken from the hands of the County Commissioners and direct to the Circuit Court the saloon men of this city have gained another point in having the case sent to another county for trial. Attorneys for the saloon men presented to Judge Jackson a petition for a change of venue on the ground that they could not get a hearing in Henry county free from bias, and Judge Jackson has sent the case to Rushville for trial in the Rush Circuit Court before Judge Sparks. An attempt will be made to get the case set for trial at an early date."

Mrs. Bert Davis, living south of this city, is quite ill.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Prof. David Graham is confined to his home in North Main street, with a severe cold.

Miss Nellie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brannan, living southwest of this city, is suffering with acute indigestion.

The case of Guy LaRue vs. F. G. Hackleman et al, with the Rush Oil company, was resumed in the circuit court today. The evidence was completed this evening and will probably go to the jury tonight.

Hal W. Green, one of the working Republicans of Jackson township, has announced his candidacy for trustee of Jackson township. Hal is from a long-line Republican family and has many friends in the ranks of the opposition in the township in which he resides.
